

Reliable partnership for ten years:
transport service provider Log-X procures
19 additional Kögel Mega trailers

Burtenbach, 13. December 2023

Log-X, a specialist company for long-distance transport and intracompany transport, has once again opted for Kögel Mega trailers. This year, the Czech company expanded its fleet with 19 additional, two-axle high-volume specialists from the Burtenbach trailer manufacturer.

The Czech transport service provider Log-X and Burtenbach trailer manufacturer Kögel are further extending their decade-long partnership. After initially procuring nine Kögel Megas in 2022, the company from Osek (central Czech Republic), northwest of Prague, acquired 19 additional high-volume specialists this year. This means that Kögel has now supplied around two thirds of the company's 60-trailer fleet.

The Kögel Mega is specially designed for high-volume transport and offers both a high load capacity with a loading height of a full three metres and a comparatively low tare weight. Log-X ordered the 19 new Kögel Megas in a two-axle version that has been optimised for operating costs, and weighs only 5,720 kilograms with basic equipment. Despite its low tare weight, the Kögel Mega offers extraordinary stability and a long service life. Extensive industry equipment and numerous body and chassis variants allow the trailers to be individually tailored to the respective transport task.

Specialist in long-distance transport and intracompany logistics

Log-X's striking trailers, painted in the company colour of cobalt blue, are used in domestic and international long-distance transport. In combination with Log-X's thoughtfully styled and, in part, airbrushed tractor units, they really stand out on major transport routes.

Press release

As well as domestic and international goods transport, express shipping and transport of groupage cargo, hazardous materials, refrigerated goods, food and heavy goods, Log-X's specialities include 24/7 intracompany transport services, warehousing and cargo handling.

Company profile
